TOOK TO THE WOODS

Cleveland Is Tired of Listening to Voorhees's Importunities.

He Is Disgusted with Office Seekers and Has Turned His Face Even Against the Mighty Sycamore.

WENT HUNTING YESTERDAY

And Left an Unpleasant Message for the Indiana Senator.

The Ex-Fiat Money Advocate Informed that He Would Have to Deal with Cabinet Officers Hereafter.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 .- Senator Voorhees was not only disappointed to-day over the action of President Cleveland in coolly sending for Secretary Gresham and hieing away to the woods, eight or ten miles west of Washington, on a squirrel-shooting expedition, leaving the office seekers out in the cold; he was absolutely disgusted, and he did not mince words in expressing his feelings of disgust to Indiana friends. Senator Voorhees felt that after running the gauntlet of his flat-money friends in Indiana in supporting the unconditional silver repeal bill and serving the President in a personal capacity for three months, he could reasonably expect a few minutes of attention at the close of the fight and three or four appointments which had been promised him, provided everything came out well in the extraordinary session of Con-

Jerome Herff, of Peru, who has been in the city two or three weeks with Secretary Rellly and other prominent Democratic friends from home, and who was promised a consulship last March by direct and positive language from the President himself, was told, two weeks ago, by Senator Voorhees that if he only lingered in the city until the silver bill was disposed of his appointment would come promptly. The Senator's disgust, when he went to the White House this morning to ask the immediate appointment of Mr. Herff, at finding that the President had gone gunning can better be realized on the ground here than imagined by Mr. Herff's friends in Indiana. The Senator grunted his deep disappointment and righteous disgust when he inquired of the President's private secretary the whereabouts of the chief executive and learned that he had not only really "taken to the woods" for the day, but intended to hereafter refer office seekers to members of his Cabinet. The senior Senator from Indiana then, indeed, realized that he was good enough to serve the President in an official and personal capacity, but when his services as an official representative of the administration in Congress were at an end he was not licensed to intrude himself upon his Excellency for fav-

It was bitter for Mr. Voorhees to be told that he must seek his reciprocity through the straw of an assistant Cabinet officer. As is well known, Secretary Gresham long ago absolved himself from all official and personal responsibility in the matter of appointments under his department, and when Senator Voorhees was to-day referred by the President's private secretary to the State Department for Jerome Herff's office, and given information that it would be useess to seek the President in the matter, Senator Voorhees knew that he would have to educate another Assistant Secretary of State as he had educated the sapient Quincy, of Boston, in the person of that new fellow Uhl, from Michigan. It will be remembered that when Mr. Vocchess was educating Quincy in the discharge of appointment duties last spring he almost gave up hope at times and felt that it was as easy to support the two sides of the silver question as it was to teach a mugwump how to properly dispense patronage, and declared that Quincy thought he knew more than the Almighty. Mr. Uhl, the new Assistant Secretary of State, who will give out the offices, will hardly be educated up to the Indiana point under some weeks yet, and if the President con-tinues to refuse to see Mr. Voorhees Jerome Herff may not be fitted out with an office until the new year is ushered in. As Senator Voorhees went away from the White House to-day, meditating upon the ingrati-tude of the President and the misfortunes of the average Hoosier office seeker, he wore a countenance that told plainer than words that the lines of senatorial duty did not lie in pleasant places about him. He was in an unhappy frame of mind. Mr. Voorhees confidently expects the appointment of Joshua Jump to be collector of internal revenue the first of next week. but when Jump's name was mentioned to Representative Brookshire to-day the Crawfordsville statesman inquired what assurance had been received by Senator Voorhees that Mr. Jump would be appointed, and who had given the assurance. A friend of Mr. Brookshire said to-day, after talking with that gentleman, that the Terre Haute man was not sure to get the place; that it might yet go to W. B. Hulet, of Crawfordsville, and that Mr. Brookshire was evidently in possession of some secret information from the President which led him to reasonably doubt the success of Jump. It is stated that all of Jump's business ramifications, including his partner-ship with John E. Lamb, his warm friendship for distiller Fairbanks, and various other matters relating to the Terre Haute ring, have all been carefully explained to the President, and that the latter was deeply impressed by them. To turn down silver repeal bill. George W. Haynie, of Evansville, is booked for appointment to the position of surveyor of that port at the time the collector of internal revenue for the Western Indiana district is named. The appointment of Haynie is to be made for Representative Taylor. The Representative of the First district, after arranging the appointment of Haynie with Secretary Carlisle, made an effort to see the President with reference to it, to-day, and he was also deeply disgusted at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

upon being informed that the President was This custom is as old as t now referring all office seekers to members of the Cabinet, and that he had no time to devote to the tales of woe which are sung by Congressmen with ambitious constitu-

Henry Mellen, of Boonville, who has been here for some time seeking the clerkship of the port at Sitka, Alaska, and who was promised the place by Secretary Hoke Smith, has run up against a snag in the stand taken by the Senate against the importation of outsiders into States and Territories to fill the federal offices therein. LeRoy Wade, of New Harmony, is yet here seeking the assistant attorney-generalship vacated by John C. Cheney, of Indiana. Mr. Wade has not run up against any of the snags which have beset his con-temporaries, but he is greatly vexed because he has not yet run up against the "Con" Cunningham, of Crawfordsville, still hangs on to the Willows. Con's perseverance is only equaled by his good nature and hope. Although he has diligently sought a consulship since the inauguration of President Cleveland, without any real direct promise, he has not ever lost hope. He would like to go to Ireland or Scotland, and as consulship after consulship in those countries have disappeared from Re-publican into Democratic hands he has transferred his hopes to another one. The "next week" when he is to get the office was uttered by him again to-day to the Journal correspondent feebly, but distinctively, indicating that he still has hopes that the "next week" will bring the fru-ition of hopes long deferred. THE MODEL'S

All over the United States the wholesale clothiers are endeavoring to dispose of the enormous stocks left on their hands on account of the prevailing business depression. They offer their merchandise at any price-but few are the merchants who have the nerve to buy in times like these. The MODEL is one of the few exceptions. We never let an opportunity go by that will enable us to give our customers double value for their money. Rothschild & Baum, Rochester, N. Y., manufacturers of Men's Finest Overcoats and Suits, and Jacobs & Sachs, Cincinnati, O., manufacturers of Tailor-made Pants, offered us their stocks at so low a price that we could not resist the temptation to buy-the price was so low that we are enabled to offer you the goods at figures that are in many cases below the manufacturers' cost. The figures we are enabled to quote will seem ridiculously low to you-never mind that. Don't judge of the quality by the price. You have never had the chance to buy seasonable merchandise-just when you wanted it-at prices as low as those we now name.

HAVE NO AFTERNOON.

It Is Always Morning or Evening with the People of Washington.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Nov. 4. - Strangers to Washington often remark upon the custom of addressing one at all times of the day by the uniform salutation, "Good morning." It sounds odd to a Westerner to hear one address him with "Good morning"

This custom is as old as the Congress of the United States and the hours of executive business in the various departments. It is said to be directly due to the morning hour in Congress. The standing rules of the two houses of Congress provide for a "morning hour," which extends from 12 to 2 o'clock, and that provision has made it common to refer to "morning business" in Congress, which occurs before the "reg-ular order." It is frequently that the regular order is not resumed, and the morning nour is extended until 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon, especially in the latter days of a Congress, and when there is a great jam of business. In the executive departments reference is made to the "morning's work" during the entire day. This is all, of course, official parlance. The custom has grown so that it extends throughout social life and in all sorts of private business, until it is morning until all government business is at an end in Washington. When the sun goes down and twilight sets in it is "Good evening." It is never afternoon in the national capital.

Indiana Tax Cases Will Not Likely Be Heard Before January.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.-"The Indiana railroad cases will not be argued here before January." This statement was made to the Journal correspondent to-day in the ent at the Treasury Department to-day office of the Clerk of the Supreme Court by | William F. Phillips, vice James M. Cockrum, that James E. Shepperd, of Indianapolis, one of his assistants, who said aurther: "It removed. is not likely that the President will think of appointing Associate Justice Hornblower during the recess of Congress, and, of course, when Congress meets in December he will have to be renominated. The nomination will again be formally referred to the Senate committee on judiciary, which will probably not have a regular meeting before the holiday recess, and if it should meet will not likely have time to take action nomination is confirmed before Congress adjourns for the holidays it will be done at a day so late that there is no probability of the court sitting for argument to the full bench before it adjourns for the holidays, so that it is safe to say the Indiana railroad tax cases will not be argued before

Number of Indiana Postoffices. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.-From the annual report of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster-general, who appoints the fourthclass postmasters, some interesting figures relating to his operations in Indiana during the fiscal year ended June 30, last, are gleaned. There were established in the State during the year fifty-nine postoffices, an increase of thirty-two over the previous year. The State has now five first-class, twentyfive second-class and eighty-eight third-class postoffices, an increase of teachuring the year. The total number of fourth-class postoffices in Indiana is now 2,054. There have been appointed of fourth-class post-masters during the year ending with last June, 983 postmasters in the State. Of this number 488 resigned, 276 were removed and Reed's Sarensm Turned on Voorhees. WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 .- Speaking of the Interview with Senator Voorhees in the morning papers in which the Indiana Senator takes occasion to tax Senator Sherman with trying to discourage the fight for unconditional repeal in the Senate, ex-Speaker Reed said to a reporter: "It makes one loose faith in human nature to witness such ingratitude, But," he continued, "of course, it is natural that such an old and tried gold bug as Senator Voorhees should have some misgivings about such a re-cent convert as John Sherman. It happens that he had attached a proviso to his acceptance of the appointment, which may serve to untangle the knot. It is expected that Congress will be asked to pass a resolution exempting him from the operation of the old law. The banking and currency committee of the House will not undertake any business until the first meeting in December. An or-der has been made to have the hearings before the committee printed. The net cash balance in the treasury has undergone but few changes since the first of the month, it being about a quarter of a million dollars more to-day than it was on Nov. 1. The net gold reserve has decreased from $84,384,862 to $83,621,386. The currency balance has increased from $17,909,-429 to $18,417,489.
